That White House Mortgage.

There is no doubt that when the Wall Street interests, the frenzied financiers and the monopolists who control the tariff protected trusts agreed to finance the Roosevelt campaign in 1904, they were promised that, at least, the Administration would not hurt the good trusts and corporations, of which we were assured there were many. In fact, Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, while he was in the Cabinet gave public assurance that the Roosevelt Administration "would not run amuck." That assurance, never denied by the President, led to liberal campaign contributions by the corporations. That some of these ardent Republican financiers should feel that they have been deceived was to have been expected and that they are now in the depths of despair is not wonderful. One of the largest commission houses in New York, who is vouched for by the Journal of Commerce as having republican sympathies, says in their last communication to their customers: "The great throbbing life of business has been stabled in the vitals. Can the other parts survive? A reassuring statement from the President that off-expected will of the wisp of Wall Street, can have little weight now; the varying character of his utterances in the past have been of such contradictory nature that what he might say again would be ineffectual. It is the uncertainty of what is to come next from an Administration infected with delusions and warped by political consideration, the problematical ability of the Federal Government to now control the destructive and anarchistic forces it has set loose, that makes the outlook gloomy. It is time for business men to unite in conference and action of force common sense at the White House.

In the same issue of the Journal of Commerce, the Wall Street firm of Carpenter, Baggot & Co. tells its customers that the President and "a weak Attorney-General, who delighted in seeing his name in print, and who should never have been in the Cabinet, have done more breaking down in confidence, and more injury to business than can be repaired in a year or more. This firm then lets the political cat out of the republican bag by declaring that: "A member of the Republican National Committee tells us that political pressure—which is the only competent pressure—is being brought to bear on the President, and he is faltering; in fact is scared at his havoc and the wane of his prosperity. He has been shown the necessity of great campaign contributions next year to offset the damage he has done, and there are hopes that his loss of political prestige may cause him to appreciate the seriousness of his methods and cause at least a modification of them." It will be interesting to note what effect this "political pressure" will have in forcing "Common Sense at the White House."

Will the money power and the frenzied financiers be able to foreclose the mortgage on the White House?

Unmindful of Warnings.

The Chicago Tribune in defending imperialism cites Egypt, Macedonia, Rome, England, France and Germany as nations that "have occupied foreign territory and governed alien peoples in the interest of commerce and civilization." The first three have already fallen and the others are inviting disaster. The Tribune is not only unmindful of the warnings of history, but it is indifferent to the advice of Lincoln, who declared that we could not destroy the spirit "which prizes liberty as the heritage of all men in all lands everywhere" without "planting the seeds of despotism at our own doors." Man has not changed much; human nature is quite the same. The man who denies the principles of self government when applied to others can not defend them with any force when he seeks to apply them to himself. Who would have thought, ten years ago, that imperialism could find apologists in the United States?

Equal Pay For Equal Work.

While sadly discommoded by the strike of telegraph operators, the general public should not forget that the striking operators are asking for not only that which seems reasonable and just. They have asked for a reasonable wages, a reasonable work day and equal pay for equal work. The last contention is, perhaps, the main one. The operators demand it because it would put a stop to discrimination and they would base remuneration on ability and experience and not upon sex or favoritism. One of the best arguments in favor of trades unions is that they are bringing about equal pay for equal work, without regard to the sex of the worker.

Good Logic.

The Democratic leader of the House of Representatives, Hon. John Sharp Williams, urges Democrats everywhere to "emphasize the things that they are agreed upon, and forget the things they do not agree upon." This is sound logic. If two disputants cannot agree upon the premises, they are also most likely to agree upon the conclusion. Now we can all agree upon the axioms and definitions of free society which we call the principles of Jefferson, if we are really Democrats. But we shall look in vain for the principle of Federal ownership of interstate high ways among the principles of Jefferson. So also we shall find in those principles no warrant for governing a people without their consent, or taxing one class for the benefit of the other class, or policing weaker nations, or entangling alliance with Kings, or expanding Federal authority by shifty interpretations of the Constitution. In fact, we should find in Jefferson nothing resembling the "policies" of Mr. Roosevelt, nothing like the socialistic hallucinations that some Democrats are preaching. Such things therefore, we ought to forget. Those who will not agree upon the axioms and definitions of free society will find a more congenial "lodgment in the Socialistic party, or in its progenitor, the Republican party. They cannot reason with Democrats, and therefore can never reach the same or similar conclusions as a basis of unity.

Progression.

In 1884 Theodore Roosevelt was a radical free trader and one of the leading members of the Free Trade League. In 1904 he had "progressed" until he dubbed [as "closet philosophy"] those who denounced the inequities of the protective tariff. A little later he cut out of his message all reference to the tariff because the "stand-patters" so advised, and for three years last past he has utterly ignored the tariff in all of his public and official utterances.

At this rate of "progression" towards tariff reform how long will it be ere the tariff schedules are revised in the interests of the people who foot the bills?

A Democrat Who Does Things.

Amongst those who are being discussed as likely to be considered for the Democratic nomination for President is Robert Broadnax Glenn, Governor of North Carolina, who has become prominently before the country within the past month or two by reason of his controversy with Judge Pritchard over the enforcement of the North Carolina railroad rate laws. He was born on a farm in Rockingham county, N. C., in August 1854, and is a member of a distinguished family, and received a classical education. Having spent three years at Davidson College, and two years at the University of Virginia, he began to study law in 1875, under Judge Richard Pearson. In 1877 he was admitted to the bar, and soon afterwards married, and settled at Danbury, in Stokes county, where he practiced his profession for seven years. He then moved to Winston and formed a partnership with Clement Manly. In 1881, he was sent to the State Legislature. In 1885 he was elected Solicitor of the Ninth Judicial District of North Carolina; and in 1893, he was appointed by President Cleveland to the office of District Attorney for the Western District of North Carolina. In 1894 he was elected Governor of the State. He was a Cleveland elector in 1884, 1888 and 1892. He is regarded as a great lawyer, and is devoted to his profession. He has never been a candidate for Congress.

As Governor Glenn succeeded in compelling the Southern Railway to obey the laws of North Carolina, in spite of the interference of the former attorney of that corporation, who is now a Federal Judge, he has won the plaudits of all men who favor a stricter regulation of railroads, and that alone would make him an available Democratic candidate for any position that his countrymen may select him for.

Verdict for Dr. Pierce

AGAINST THE ## Ladies' Home Journal.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription" published in the May (1904) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with its great black display headings, who never saw the humble, groveling retraction, with its inconspicuous heading, published two months later. It was boldly charged in the slanderous and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of woman's weaknesses and ailments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $200,000.00 damages. Dr. Pierce alleged that Mr. Bok, the editor, maliciously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business; furthermore, that no alcohol, or other injurious, or habit-forming, drugs are, or ever were, contained in his "Favorite Prescription"; that said medicine is made from native medicinal roots and contains no harmful ingredients whatever; and that Mr. Bok's malicious statement were wholly and absolutely false. In the retraction printed by said Journal they were forced to acknowledge that they had obtained analyses of "Favorite Prescription" from eminent chemists, all of whom certified that it did not contain alcohol or any of the alleged harmful drugs. These facts were also proven in the trial of the action in the Supreme Court. But the business of Dr. Pierce was greatly injured by the publication of the libelous article with its great display headings, while hundreds of thousands who read the wickedly defamatory article never saw the humble groveling retraction, set in small type and made as inconspicuous as possible. The matter was, however, brought before a jury in the Supreme Court of New York State which promptly rendered a verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and their base slanders were refuted.
